Waikato/Bay of Plenty Cancer Society

There's so much information to take on board. It's valuable being able to ask the nurses about anything to do with cancer, and they're always happy to share. It's very comforting.

All people, every cancer

The Cancer Society is committed to reducing the impact and incidence of cancer in communities throughout the Waikato and Bay of Plenty region.

Chair's report

Cancer Society has continued to support people with cancer and their whānau through the global pandemic, with prevention and risk mitigation always at the fore of how we operate our services.

Covid-19 continues to have a significant impact on communities and individuals. People have become somewhat desensitised to the risk the virus poses and weary of the ongoing measures to prevent transmission. However, people with cancer remain particularly vulnerable and the Cancer Society has continued to support and advocate for our clients during these challenging times.

This year, we continued our campaign to raise funds in honour of the tenth anniversary of Cancer Society's Lions Lodge with a view to update the facility so we can continue to deliver a high-quality experience for guests. Lions clubs through the region stepped forward to support our campaign and various philanthropic funders were also very generous with grants for refurbishment. We are extremely grateful for their continued support during the year.

While we were bitterly disappointed to cancel Daffodil Day street collection in August 2021 due to Covid-19 lockdown, we were humbled at the response from our communities, who supported the national online appeal. Our major sponsor ANZ were particularly supportive, and we thank them for their ongoing commitment. Our collaboration with Cancer Society Auckland/Northland for fundraising has been a success in the first year, despite the challenges of face-to-face fundraising during a pandemic. However, ensuring sufficient funds to carry out our mission continues to be challenging.

Community fundraising campaigns were highlights in a difficult environment. This year's Longest Day golf challenge was even more successful in its second year of operation and Jump for Cancer was relaunched with teams in Taupō and Tauranga courageously skydiving in support of Cancer Society.

We had a solid financial performance for the year ended 31 March 2022 in a challenging environment. While we had a reported operating surplus of $2.5M, this was the result of settlement and recognition of a generous beguest of $3.67M from the late David Hold. The majority of the funds were received in 2016/2017. but at that time the distribution was required to be treated as a loan, in order to allow time for any challenges to the will. The Estate has now been wound up and the income recognised in the 2022 financial year. There was also a fair-value gain on investments of $216,365. It should be acknowledged that a significant decrease in market value of the investments has occurred since then, and next year's financial results may have a less positive outcome. Otherwise, income and expenses were within budget and the organisation remains in a sound financial position.

At a national level, work on the implementation of the new federation-wide strategic plan is continuing. This lays the foundation for Cancer Society divisions to work collaboratively in a way that ensures delivery of a high-quality national model of supportive care, an improved collaborative approach to fundraising and a more efficient governance structure.

We would like to acknowledge the passing of Life Member and one of our original founders, Barry Prior. Without people like Barry, the extensive cancer supportive care services provided to our communities would not exist. We are proud to pay tribute to Barry on page twelve.

With great sadness, but also gratitude, we have farewelled Chief Executive, Shelley Campbell. Her outstanding leadership during the pandemic and her commitment to improving cancer outcomes within our Division, and nationally, has been an inspiration. We wish Shelley well in her new role as Chief Executive of Wise Group.

Cancer Society could not operate without our trusted partners and sponsors. The generosity and commitment of our philanthropic funders, corporates and clubs is an indication of the fabric of our local communities. We particularly thank our major sponsors ANZ Bank, Fairview Motors and Lions clubs, and all the organisations and individuals who have supported us this year. Without you, none of our work in the community would be possible.

We are particularly fortunate to have a skilled and dedicated team of staff, volunteers and board members working together to assist us to achieve our mission of reducing the impact and incidence of cancer for New Zealanders. The staff and management team work tirelessly across the organisation, pitching in for fundraising, Lodge duties and driving, regardless of their "day job" or rank. I would also like to express my sincere thanks to my fellow board members and all volunteers for their contributions during this challenging, but rewarding, year.

Dr Jim PrimroseChair, Waikato/Bay of Plenty
Cancer Society Board

When we marked the tenth anniversary of the Cancer Society's Lions Lodge on 26 February 2021, we envisaged a year-long calendar of events in celebration of the significant role the Lodge plays providing free accommodation, meals and support to people with cancer who are in need.

In its first ten years, the Lodge provided 106,424 nights' accommodation to people with cancer and their carers, and served 319,272 nutritious meals — all at no cost to guests. It is indeed an achievement worth celebrating.

However, one of our goals was also to look to the future to ensure this unique facility stands the test of time and remains an inviting home away from home for the more than 15,000 people who will stay there in the next ten years.

We set an ambitious target to raise $250,000 to fund refurbishments at the Lodge.

We did not know then the impact Covid-19 would have on the fundraising activities we planned. It was disappointing to cancel several events during the year, not only for us at Cancer Society, but our supporters in the community who planned their own fundraising events on behalf of the Lodge.

Nevertheless, the support from communities across the region did not waiver. We've since exceeded our fundraising goal, raising over $400,000 to date, and work to renovate our rooms is progressing well.

This would not have been possible without the vast generosity of supporters.

We want to thank those who made a significant contribution to our tenth anniversary fund by sponsoring the renovation of guest rooms at the Lodge.

Significant events

Covid-19 provided significant challenges to cancer clients and their whānau. The Cancer Society's Lions Lodge continued to operate throughout the lockdown periods, with extended services offering 24/7 accommodation and meals. The volunteer driving service was suspended. Support groups were cancelled. The demand for frozen meals and psychosocial support increased, but therapeutic massage was suspended. Some face-to-face health promotion activities were suspended during lockdown periods

Key achievements during her time with the division include a focus on frontline services like the Kia Ora E Te lwi marae-based health literacy programme and the whānau model at Cancer Society's Lions Lodge, as well as the modernisation of IT and financial systems.

Over the last two years Shelley guided the division through the Covid-19 pandemic and several lockdowns in the region, as well as the Waikato DHB ransomware attack in May 2021.

Throughout these challenges, the focus for the division remained the continuation of supportive care services and accommodation to ensure people with cancer received the treatment they needed. This saw

Shelley take a 'hands-on' role at the Lodge in addition to her chief executive responsibilities, and included serving meals to guests, getting behind the wheel of the shuttle and even donning an apron for housekeeping.

One of the 'silver linings' to come out of challenging times has been greater collaboration across the federation as demonstrated by last year's national Daffodil Day appeal in the wake of the cancelled street appeal and Waikato/Bay of Plenty division's unified fundraising agreement with Auckland Northland division in 2021.

At a national level, Shelley says she is proud of the impact the Cancer Society has had on cancer care and control in recent years. Highlights include the Cancer Care at a Crossroads Conference co-hosted with Otago University in February 2019, which identified the need for central leadership in cancer control. Since then, we've seen the establishment of Te Aho o te Kahu Cancer Control Agency and the release of the New Zealand Cancer Action Plan – the first of its kind since 2003.

Although Shelley moves in a new direction as chief executive of one of the largest mental health and wellbeing services in New Zealand, she continues to take a keen interest in cancer control as chair of Te Aho o te Kahu and co-chair of the National Māori Bowel Cancer Panel.

Barry Charles Prior, JP, MNZM 1930–2022

The division is saddened by the passing of former president, life member and loyal supporter Barry Prior.

Barry was a key figure in the formation of the Waikato branch of the British Empire Cancer Society in 1963 – later named the Waikato/Bay of Plenty Division of the Cancer Society.

In the early 1960s Barry identified a critical need for cancer treatment to be delivered locally within Waikato. At that time, the nearest radiation therapy machine was in Auckland, 130 kilometres from Hamilton and more than 320 kilometres from the far reaches of the territory it was expected to cover. For many people with cancer living in the region's most remote communities, it was an insurmountable barrier to receiving vital cancer treatment.

As president of the local Jaycees at that time, and with his deep commitment to public service, Barry saw an opportunity to improve treatment options for people with cancer living in Waikato. The solution was to raise funds for a Cobalt-60 radiation therapy machine at Waikato Hospital.

The campaign to raise the required funds was ambitious, and not without its detractors. During a presentation to the AGM on the occasion of the division's 40th anniversary in 2003, Barry outlined the various challenges Jaycees faced, not least of all resistance from Government and other interest groups. Nevertheless, Barry remained undeterred.

More than 500 Jaycees across Waikato took part in a telephone appeal on a single evening. The response from the public was overwhelming. Over £73,000 were raised.

Barry leaves behind an astonishing legacy; a purpose-built cancer unit at Waikato Hospital and the establishment of Waikato/Bay of Plenty Cancer Society. Even more significant is the many people with cancer across the region who benefitted from improved access to life-prolonging treatment.
